PREFACE.

Herewith I hand you, dear reader, the great illustrated Egyptian Dream Book of the wise and enlightened Monk Aegydius Lebrecht, as it has been compiled by him from ancient Egyptian, Arabian, Chinese, and Swe dish manuscripts, and enlarged by me from the riches of the great and wonderful revelations which have been bestowed on me. In this book you will find, without any trouble, the interpretation and meaning of all your dreams, if you only look for the right word.

The lucky Numbers which are added to the dreams, and the lucky numbers and the interpretation of the dreams are the result of most careful observation and the experience of many years, and my earnest wish is, that they will bring you a fortune, and then I shall feel myself amply compensated for my trouble.

I pray you not to lose sight of the lucky and unlucky days of the year and to pay attention to my directions towards the end of the book. And now, dear reader, Good Bye!

DIRECTIONS,

HOW TO PLAY IN THE LOTTERY SO AS SURELY TO WIN.

By THIAN-SCHEN-PE-LULA.

It is easy enough to understand, that every one who plays in the Lottery would like thereby to become rich; therefore much has been written on this subject, and the directions and means to attain this end have been issued in many books. The most of them, however, have very little practical use, and only very few offer anything worthy of notice.

Whereas the players in the lottery in the selection of their numbers generally wish to be successful, therefore many among them make use of the so-called wheels of fortune. A wheel of fortune is a wheel, upon which good luck stands upright, in so far as the artists represent it as a human being, to show the changes and uncertainties of those incidents upon which our welfare in the visible world generally depends. There are three sorts of these wheels of fortune. First, such as are here described. and which serve for no other purpose, than to represent fortune in a symbolic manner, or to design or delineate a picture of the Goddess of Fortune, (Fortuna), of the ancient heathens. Secondly, certain little books are sometimes also called "wheels of fortune," which, by turning down a part of a leaf or by throwing dice in an artistic manner, either upon certain marked off places on the pages, or by pointing out certain sayings, which are intended to inform the players of their imaginary good fortune. These little books are very interesting in a cheerful company, and the play which is thereby presented is in itself innocent, provided that no reasonable person will take the matter seriously. And thirdly, the wheels of fortune are certain dials or disks, on which all the ninety numbers in a circle are written, which have a somewhat raised, pointed wire between each number. Upon the numbers which are so enclosed with pointed wires, there is a round space like the circle of the ninety numbers, in which a ball may be driven around. After the rapid motion of the ball has ceased it will stop before a number, and such numbers the lottery players are in the habit of choosing. This is the mode of proceeding in the selection of the second, third, fourth, &c. This method is in every point of view harmless, since not the least shade of superstition is easily possible; but it is also just as uncertain a method as it is harmless. It agrees with the drawing of the balls, on which the ninety numbers are placed, and which are generally kept in a bag. It may happen that one may receive the same numbers that are drawn, and thus every one, who cannot study or imagine the numbers himself, may have recourse to this method. In some of the Lottery Plans and in some sorts of triangles an abuse rather than superstition may creep in, therefore we shall not take the trouble to describe them here at large. But we will rather describe a species of triangle, because it is particularly recommended in some works, and because it may perhaps please some of our readers. It consists of the following figure, and it is called by some the Cabalistic sign of luck.

Now this double triangle, or as some call it, this cabalistic Sign of Luck, represents all of the ninety numbers, as they are mixed up in the lucky vase. If you would, therefore, select your number for a future drawing after this triangle, then you should have the numbers of the previous drawing, and from the same seek the numbers for the next drawing, in the following manner: viz., suppose that in the drawing last gone through with, the first drawn number was 17, you must then seek for number 17 in the figure, then count five numbers forwards, and choose the next following number for the next drawing; here number 32 would thus be the first number for the next drawing. Proceed in like manner in the counting with the remaining forthcoming numbers. Thus, if in the next forthcoming drawing the second drawn number was 24, then likewise count from this number five numbers forwards, and the sixth following, namely number 44, will be the second number for the next drawing, &c. But here you must observe, that when you come to a point of the triangle, you must immediately continue to count in the next following line. In this manner you may try rightly to discover, through the numbers drawn in the preceding drawing, those numbers that will be drawn in the following drawing. Yet we do not give it as an unfailing and certain means to guess at the numbers, and according to your liking to make Saddles, Gigs and Horses.

In general, you most consider the lottery solely as an opportunity to try your luck, as a back-door through which many a one has succeeded to slip into the lucky palace. Lotteries were not introduced to make people rich by playing, but only to increase the revenues of the State, and to give to those who wish to try their luck an opportunity to do it. Many a one pays a few cents, and rests under the expectation of winning some hundred dollars, without losing any time in the process; one rejoices till the drawing, and flatters himself with the hope, in case of luck, in some measure to be able to improve his condition. Now, this is something, that no one will condemn; but if any one neglects his business,—if he puts his full trust and confidence in the lottery, such a man is a fool. We use all lawful means to obtain riches, but there ought to be in all things moderation and reason.

In order to make our book complete we will, besides the above large cabalistic triangle, let the monthly cabala follow here, so that every one can choose which he pleases.

Whoever wishes to try his luck with the monthly cabala, should, in that part of the month in which the drawing takes place, find out the numbers and write them upon the side, cabalize them in various ways in as many Gig-Tickets as you wish.

For example: The Drawing in which you intend to play, falls on the 4th of January, thus you will find for the Drawing in the Lottery of this month the following numbers to play upon: 32, 42, 51.*

January	February	March	April	May	June
1	5	6	4	4	2
3 4 5	4 6 3	1 5 7	2 5 6	2 3 5	4 6 7

6 2 3	4 7 9	1 2 8	7 3 4	7 2 4	2 4 3

* On account of the tens, you may add a 0, and write 40, 20, 15, 30, as it may suit you.
